TENNEY'S TEAM OUT FOR THIRD GAME

Victors in Morning Game at South End Grounds Start in to Make It Three Straight From the Brooklyn Crowd—Large Attendance This Afternoon.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, Boston, April 19.—With five straight defeats staring them in the face—they having lost the morning game—the Brooklyn team came out on the diamond this afternoon resolved to break their string of horse collars.

The weather was considerably warmer than it was on the opening day, or at the morning game, for that matter, and there was a larger gathering of the fans. Tenney's men were in high feather at winning two games running, and the captain told all hands to play their best and keep up the winning streak.

The news published exclusively this morning in the BOSTON AMERICAN that Vic Willis had finally come to terms with the Boston club and would report to Tenney on Friday was a bit of pleasing news to his club mates, as well as the friends of the team.

The preliminary practice was full of ginger, both teams welcoming the warmer weather. Criger, Sessions, Olmstead and O'Brien of the Boston American League Club were in attendance again, as was also Frank Dunn, who will assume control of the Boston Nationals next October. Mr. Dunn said he would have an architect at the grounds to-morrow to suggest changes in the grand stand and other contemplated improvements in the plant. He seems to be very enthusiastic over his new purchase, and things promise to be very different at the famous old ball grounds next season.

Mitchell, the Allston boy, warmed up before the game and his friends hoped he would be selected to face Tenney's men.

The bleachers back of first base were packed and jammed long before the game began, and the twenty-five-cent enthusiasts were forced over on the third-base seats, which are not considered so desirable.

The Brooklyn players did not leave the grounds between games, having their luncheon of sandwiches, cold meats, pies and coffee served on the visiting players' bench.

Mal Eason, who is back in the big league after a season at Jersey City, essayed to fool the Boston men with his benders.

The third-base seats were soon filled, and the overflow drifted out behind the ropes in centre field. It was said to be the first time the ropes have been required since the advent of the American League in Boston. There were many vacant seats in the grand stand, however, when the game began, the attendance being estimated at 5,000.

LORZ OF YONKERS, N. Y., IS FIRST IN MARATHON RACE

Marks, Pastime A. C., N. Y., Second, Fowler, Cambridgeport Gym, Comes Home Third.

In a heart-breaking finish, amid the cheers of thousands, Fred Lorz, the crack runner of the Mohawk Athletic Club of Yonkers, N. Y., beat out L. Marks, of the Pastime Athletic Club of New York, by ten lengths, in the ninth annual Marathon run of the Boston Athletic Association.

The winner's time was 2 hours 38 minutes 25 2-5 seconds, about nine minutes slower than the record for the course.

With his face covered with perspiration and his legs cut and bleeding, the result of a tumble he took a mile this side of the Newton Lower Falls railroad station, Lorz broke the tape and fell into the arms of friends, who stood ready to greet him with open arms, while hats and handkerchiefs were thrown wildly into the air. Never before did a winner of the Marathon receive such a greeting as did this nervy little New Yorker.

Lorz a Dark Horse.

Too much credit cannot be bestowed upon Lorz. He was not thought of as a possible winner before the race, and to think that he would plough through such a field and cross the line first was too much even for his closest friends to believe for a few seconds.

Marks also deserves all the credit that is coming to him. He ran a great race; showed headwork all the way, and if he had been able to keep up the pace he showed when going over the hill at the other side of Brookline he would have won.

R. Fowler of the Cambridgeport Gymnasium was third. Fourth honors went to H. F. Miller, Jr., of Boston; fifth to E. S. Farnsworth, Medford; Little Dave Kneeland of the St. Philips A. C., was sixth; T. J. Sullivan, St. Phillips A. C., seventh; R. Kennedy, Roxbury, eighth; M. J. O'Neil, Cambridge, ninth; P. L. Hunt, Roxbury, tenth; D. Jacobs, Boston, eleventh; J. C. Lorden, Cambridge, twelfth.

Seventy-eight in Race.

As the town clock in Ashland pealed off the hour of 12 to-day seventy-eight well-trained athletes responded to the crack of the starter's revolver, and with a steady stride which was not likely to last many miles began the ninth annual Marathon run, which was conducted by the Boston Athletic Association.

At the very start it was a sprint, H. J. Neary, of the Natick High School, taking the lead, closely followed by F. A. Mellor, who had once before won this race. Mike Spring, who captured the honors last year, was third, running very strong a mile out from the start. Hicks, the Cambridge runner, was fourth, but as he was arriving in South Framingham turned his ankle, and being rather a heavy man his chances of finishing looked decidedly slim.

Haarer in the Lead.

It was just 12:7 when the men reached Natick. F. H. Haarer, of the St. Alphonsus Club of Boston, was about five yards ahead of Mellor. Fred Lorz arrived about a minute later, looking to be in the best possible form. L. Marks, of the Pastime A. C. of New York and a clubmate of Spring, was fourth, being about fifteen yards in the rear of Lorz.

Mike Spring put in his appearance at Natick about a minute later, and was as fresh as a daisy. E. S. Farnsworth, the Cambridge man, was close behind Spring, but looked rather tired. It was 12:50 before the next bunch put in appearance at Natick. H. J. Neary, the Natick High School man was leading, followed closely by David J. Kneeland.

A contingent of 300 students turned out to greet Neary, and the reception he got seemed to fill him with confidence, for immediately after leaving his home town he began to hit the pace up at a terrific rate, soon leaving the bunch with him far in the rear.

About a mile and a half this side of Natick, Spring turned his ankle on a stone, wrenching his right knee. He tried gamely to continue, but after staggering along for a few hundred yards was forced to quit. He was picked up by friends who had followed him closely in a carriage, and he rode to the finish, being there in time to see the finish.

SPRING INJURED.

Spring had wrenched his knee while practicing a week ago, and was advised by his physician not to take part in the race, but he thought that the injured member had repaired sufficiently to warrant his being able to do the twenty-five miles.

Going through Wellesley Mellor and Harper were still in the lead. They were aiding each other, one doing the pacemaking and then the other. Both appeared to be in exceptionally fine trim and were greeted with cheer after cheer from the thousands of spectators who lined along the course to see these sturdy athletes.

Mellor Spurts.

A mile out from Newton Lower Falls

Winner's Time Is 2:38:25 2-5, About Nine Minutes Below Record for the Course.

Mellor began to put on speed, and when the railroad station was reached the New Yorker was 100 yards ahead of Haarer, the crack Boston cross-country runner. L. Marks was within 200 yards of Haarer, while P. W. Foley, the fast long-distance runner from Medford, by a wonderful burst of speed during the last two miles, had come into fourth place and was running like a deer. Mellor arrived at Newton Lower Falls at just 1:18 o'clock.

Lorz Running Well.

The second squad arrived at the Newton Lower Falls station about ten minutes after the leaders. Lorz, the New Yorker, was leading in easy fashion. He began to hit up the pace after crossing the railroad bridge closely followed, however, by Farnsworth, the Cambridge man. Kneeland was third and running lightly. Easley was fourth and R. C. Lewis of Somerville a close fifth, but running as though he wouldn't last many more miles. M. J. O'Neil of Cambridge was sixth, but he, like Lewis, looked about all in.

J. C. Lorden of East Cambridge came across the bridge in eighth position. He was far in the rear at Natick, but began to hit the pace up at a good rate about three miles out from Newton Lower Falls, and when he arrived at the station he was still travelling at a great rate.

HOLY CROSS MEETS HER OLD RIVAL ON DIAMOND

BIG CROWD OUT TO SEE GAME WITH BROWN ON NEW FIELD.

FITTON FIELD, Holy Cross College, April 19.—On the formal opening of the baseball season and the dedication of Fitton Field with a contest between the old rivals, Brown and Holy Cross, preparations were made to receive the largest crowd ever to witness a game here. In addition to the grandstand and two bleachers, additional portable seats were provided for the spectators, bringing the seating capacity up to 6,000.

As a result of the hard, snappy work yesterday under Coach McCarthy, the purple wearers were in fine form and fit to play the game of their lives. Spring and Loftus were the Holy Cross battery. This meant that Holy Cross made her best effort to win one of the most desirable games on her schedule.

McManus, who hit so well in the Boston University game, covered right field. Otherwise the batting order was the same as in previous games.

HARVARD AND INDIANS MEET AT SLOWTOWN

FINE WEATHER FOR GAME BETWEEN CRIMSON AND CARLISLE NINES.

Special to the Boston American.

NATIONAL LEAGUE BASEBALL GROUNDS, Philadelphia April 19.—After a day's enforced idleness on account of the inclement weather, Harvard and Carlisle Indians were treated to a fine day this morning for their baseball game on the Phillies' grounds. The Crimson players went for a long walk yesterday, and some of them took in the University of Pennsylvania-Williams game on Franklin Field. They showed their appreciation of clever play by applauding both teams impartially, and they thought the Red and Blue had a promising pitcher in Brady.

The Indians were not very hopeful of taking to-day's game, they having been handicapped in the calibre of the few teams they have played. Their supporters were sanguine, however, and were prepared to carry home nine crimson, gory scalps.

Notwithstanding the double attraction of games by the Athletics and Pennsylvania, there was a fairly good attendance of spectators.

IDEAL WEATHER PREVAILS

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled:
Here once the embattled farmers stood
And fired the shot heard round the world. —The Concord Hymn.

All roads led to Lexington and Concord to-day.

Not only the minds of the people of this Commonwealth, where it is a legal holiday, but those of the Nation, turned patriotically toward the tiny green cradle at Lexington where American Liberty was born and to the rude Concord bridge where, in the immortal words of Emerson, was fired the shot that was "heard round the world."

Locally this is known as Patriots' Day. Throughout the whole country it is remembered as such if not so observed. It is the 126th anniversary of the battle of Lexington and Concord, and of the memorable ride of Paul Revere.

When the first gleam of the sun shot from the sky upon the historic town of Concord this morning it was greeted with a dual salute of joy. From the cannon of the independent battery loomed a thunder of welcome. From the myriad bells of the place rang out a harmonious, gladsome acclaim.

Loved Shrine of Liberty.

These holiday sounds fell not upon a somnolent ear. Concord was up before the sun. Its streets thronged with hurrying residents. The air was surcharged with the electricity of life, of action. Men went about the final preparations for the celebration with brisk, feverish tread. Women bustled about their houses getting in readiness for invited guests. Children with faces shining, and gala attire gleaming called to one another in the happy, merry tones of youthful enjoyment.

Almost with the rising of the sun came the first visitors. They had prepared to spend the day at this loved shrine of liberty, and why not enjoy the early hours? And so, from every direction the guests arrived. And they found that the committees that had charge of the day's program had done their work well.

The celebration following the sunrise salute began simultaneously in Concord, Lexington, Arlington and Boston.

Visit Grave of Revere.

In Boston the members of the American Irish Historical Society were up and astir early. Automobiles had been provided for their fourth annual trip to Concord and Lexington. Before they started a delegation visited the resting place of Paul Revere in the old cemetery on Hanover Park Street Church and placed a wreath upon it in memory of his magnificent accomplishment. Upon the grave of Governor James Sullivan a wreath was also placed. Another floral emblem was placed on the memorial tablet to Major-General John Sullivan in King's Chapel.

Program at Concord.

This was the day's program at Concord:

At sunrise—Salute by the Independent Battery and ringing of the bells.

9 a.m.—Band concert on the playgrounds by the First Regiment Band.

9:30 a.m.—Final athletic tournament on the playgrounds between the Concord High School and a visiting school, not yet selected.

10 a.m.—Field day drill on the fair grounds by the Third Battalion of the Sixth Regiment, M. V. M., which is composed of B Company of Fitchburg, D Company of Fitchburg, I Company of Concord and L Company of Boston. Major Smith of Fitchburg commands the battalion.

10:30 a.m.—Literary exercises in the Unitarian Church.

12 m.—Salute by the Independent Battery and ringing of bells. The battalion will have dinner at the armory.

1 p.m.—Band concert in Monument square.

2 p.m.—Grand military and civic parade over the principal streets of the town. Lieutenant-Colonel Cyrus H. Cook will be the chief marshal. In the line will be the First Regiment Band, the Third Battalion, Sixth Regiment, M. V. M., Old Concord Post, G. A. R., and the Independent Battery. This will be followed by the civic parade, which will include the trades and many local features, for which prizes will be offered.

At the close of the parade the battalion marched to the playground for a drill and salute to the colors.

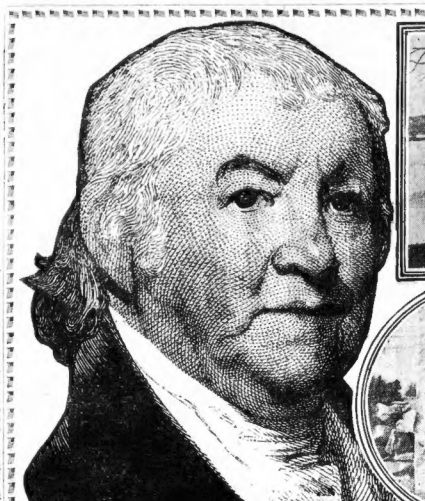

At sunset—Salute by the battery and ringing of the bells.

8 p.m.—Promenade concert and dance in the town hall.

The Day at Lexington.

At Lexington there were band concerts on the Battle Green in the forenoon and early afternoon by the Boston & Maine Band. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock there was an entertainment for young people. The Old Belfry Club kept open house all day and will conduct the usual ball in the house in the evening. The Irish American Historical Society were extended courtesies at the hotel of George W. Taylor, chairman of the Board of Selectmen.

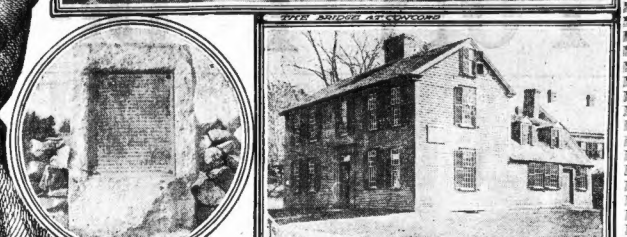

The only observance of the day in Arlington was by the Fife and Drum Corps of the town which marched over the Paul Revere route, starting at the back from the old Mystic bridge that divides the town from Medford and ending up the Paul Revere road to Lexington line.

DESCENDANTS OF HEROES TAKE PART

Among the most active participants in the celebration to-day are six lineal descendants of men who were prominent in the actual battles in the Revolution.

Charles W. Prescott, chairman of the general committee in charge of the celebration, bears the same name and descends directly from the great and illustrious colonel William Prescott, who commandantly wounded at the battle of Bunker Hill, after gallantly leading in the charge which first repelled the line of Redcoats storming the redoubt. It was he who uttered the famous words, "Don't shoot, boys, until you see the whites of their eyes."

The Prescotts are of fighting stock, for the father of Charles Prescott was Colonel George L. Prescott, who led many charges on the battlefields in the South during the Civil War, while a soldier's death while leading his regiment's infantry in an assault upon the rebel strong hold at Petersburg, Va.

Selectman John M. Keyes, a retired financier and business man of Concord, is also a descendant of a family which took an active part in the Revolution. He traces his ancestry back to Solomon Keyes, of Westford, who, when he heard the exchange of shots between the British troops and the farmers of Concord and Lexington, dropped his farm work, seized his old flintlock and rushed from Westford to Lexington, arriving after the battle on the green. But in time to join the British back to Boston, harassing them with shots fired from the cover of stone walls and trees along the route. Selectman Keyes is also a descendant of Dr. Timothy Minot, a surgeon who served on American privateers during the war, and whose services were recorded to the government. George S. Keyes and Prescott Keyes are also on the general committee and belong to the same family.

Selectman Stedman Buttrick is a direct descendant of Major John Buttrick, who commanded a portion of the farmer force which harried the British column from Boston after the battle on Lexington green. Major Buttrick was a quiet, reserved business man associated with a State savings bank, and lived but residing in Concord and taking an active part in the conduct of the town's affairs.

IRISH HISTORICAL SOCIETY MEMBERS OFF TO LEXINGTON

Forty members of the American Irish Historical Society, in a large eight-seated automobile, went to Lexington to-day. The president of the association, Hon. John B. Crimmins of New York, and Secretary J. H. Murray of this city accompanied the party. At the Cambridge City Hall the auto stopped to permit the visitors to pay their respects to Mayor Quigley. They proceeded out Massachusetts avenue to Lexington.

BEEF TRUST AGAIN RAISES COST OF MEAT

Adds Two Cents to Wholesale Price, Making Total Five Cents in Three Weeks.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The Beef Trust again raised its prices to-day when two cents a pound was added to the already largely increased price of fresh beef. Where the wholesalers paid seven cents three weeks ago for their beef, wholesale, to-day they paid twelve cents a pound, and the average price that the cuts of all classes obtained before the first advance was made.

The wholesale butchers of New York to-day issued notice to all retail butchers of a corresponding increase in the price of meat to them and it is expected that the retail butchers will add the necessary cost to the usual charge for a porterhouse, sirloin, tenderloin and lesser cuts.

According to some of the retailers who attended a meeting on the West Side they have been keeping down the price of beef to the consumers at a sacrifice since the first advance in wholesale prices. They say that they can no longer do so.

"We kept the retail price down," said one of these retailers, "because we hoped that the wholesale advance would be temporary and we did not want to disturb trade by a retail advance, preferring to lose a trifle. But since the Trust has raised again and as there is no prospect of the price of beef going down in the near future, we are compelled to come up in the price in proportion to what we have to pay for our meat wholesale."

"BUCCANEERS" DINE.

The Buccaneers, a social organization, gave its first banquet in John A. Hawes' Post Hall, East Boston. Thomas F. Doherty was toastmaster and Hon. Joseph A. Conry, Senator William Taylor and Alderman James F. Nolan were the speakers.

APPLEYARD REFUSED.

the use of whiskey as a diet in cases of tuberculosis, and says that pure whiskey has a double value, arising first from stimulation and second from its food effects. He says:

That the proper kind of whiskey to use is that distilled from the fermented mash of cereals, stored in wood until properly aged so as to remove the greater part of the fusel oils. Dr. Wiley, as chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture, is an authority on such matters, and his advice is most timely.

JAP FLEET HEADS OFF RUSSIANS

Togo Throws a Line of Cruisers from Luzon Across to Formosa Straits.

SIGHTED NORTH OF MANILA

MANILA, April 19.—Sixteen cruisers and torpedo boats of the Japanese fleet are reported off the Philippines, forty miles north of Manila.

This is regarded as a counter move by Admiral Togo to the reported plan of Rojestvensky to send three of his fastest cruisers to Japanese waters to harass ports.

LONDON, April 19.—Admiral Togo has spread a scouting line of fast cruisers and destroyers from the northern point of the Island of Luzon to the western side of the Straits of Formosa in order to prevent any of the Russian fleet from leaving the China Sea without his knowledge.

London has special dispatches from Hamburg, stating that Rojestvensky has detached a portion of his fleet for service in Japanese waters. If this is true it is regarded as certain that those vessels are lost because naval experts now agree that instead of seeking a general engagement Admiral Togo's plan is to single out one vessel or small portions of the Russian fleet for attack.

Holland May Protest.

The Chronicle here says:

"Holland is inquiring into a rumor that Japan has established wireless telegraph stations on some of the less frequented of the Sunda Islands. If the rumor is found to be true, Holland will make an energetic protest and probably submit complaint to The Hague tribunal.

"The alleged indignation in Japan over the supposed violations of neutrality by France seems to be confined to the newspapers and a section of the public."

Shipping circles are uneasy in the absence of definite news of Rojestvensky's fleet. The possibility of the capture of vessels by the Russians has caused insurance rates to Pacific ports and Australia to be increased. It has been necessary to keep the British vessels bound from Hong Kong to Japan with Chinese, as the original crews refused to proceed for fear of meeting the Baltic fleet.

A Shanghai correspondent says the government has ordered all naval reserves now working on mercantile vessels in Scandinavian ports to return home immediately. They are wanted to man a fourth Baltic fleet.

Three unknown steamers have anchored in Lingayen Bay, Island of Luzon, about 130 miles north of Manila Bay.

OLD BELFRY TOWER AT LEXINGTON

NOTE IN BOTTLE TELLS OF DEATH

WORCESTER, April 19.—The police are investigating a peculiar note which was found in a bottle at Bell Pond by Officer Charles F. McGovern. While going by the pond he found a bottle floating on the surface. Inside was the following note:

"Whoever finds this bottle will notify the police. I have got sick of living and I think I will drown myself. I have not got any money or friend and I think I will be better off. Notify my wife, Mrs. John Mellea, Summer Street Jail."

At Summer Street Jail it was learned that no Mrs. John Mellea was there either as a prisoner or employe.

There is a man named McHea, at one time employed as a motorman on the street railway, who has been out of employment and has not been seen around his usual haunts for some time.

How to Save Money and Health.

Most people have some trouble with their health which they would like cured if it could be done easily and cheaply. Dr. Greene, of 24 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., who is the most successful specialist in nervous, chronic diseases, makes the following offer: He gives you the privilege of consulting him, free of charge, through his great system of letter correspondence. Write him just how you feel and what symptoms trouble you. He will answer your letter, explaining your case thoroughly, telling just what you need and how to get strong and well. He gives the most careful attention to every letter, and makes his explanations so clear that you understand exactly what your complaint is. And for all this you pay nothing. You have no doctor's bills to pay. The Doctor makes a specialty of treating patients through letter correspondence, and is having wonderful success. He is the discoverer of that celebrated medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. If you write him at once you will doubtless be cured. If you can call upon Dr. Greene at his office you can receive his advice free, but by his system of letter correspondence people living at a distance will receive the counsel freely by writing him a full description of their case.

ROOSEVELT SENDS HIDE OF BEAR HE SHOT

Two Guides, as Special Couriers, Bring the Trophy to Secretary Loeb.

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Col., April 19.—Two guides came to the Colorado Hotel and were introduced to Secretary Loeb as special couriers from the President. They had been in town for an hour and a half and had packed through the streets the fresh hide of the bear which the President had killed before they started out, but they did not see the security of reporting until they were ready.

Then Elmer Chipman advanced him self at the hotel as the messenger of the President, for his companion, J. C. Austin, kept in the rear.

Meanwhile Secretary Loeb had been waiting, and when they at last concluded they might as well deliver their message he insisted them into his room. Then Austin had to be satisfied of his duty by a secret agent and pushed along the corridors. The news they brought was given out in a bulletin from Secretary Loeb that Monday afternoon a big bear was started. By hard scrambling up on mountain side the President succeeded in shooting him, and the bear was brought to town to be stuffed.

On the same day Dr. Lambert shot a lion cat. No casualties were reported. Secretary Loeb will return to the camp with the couriers, taking with him a number of papers for the President's signature. He will go by train to Newcastle, and will ride horseback to the camp, twenty-three miles.

Mayor Studley carried every ward in the city, including three which have been Democratic strongholds.

BARS WOMEN FROM TRIAL OF NAN PATTERSON

Recorder Goff's Ruling Disappoints Great Throng at Opening To-day.

THREE JURORS ARE CHOSEN

NEW YORK, April 19.—Recorder Goff has ruled that women may not attend the trial of Nan Patterson, charged with the murder of "Caesar" Young, and many were turned away, to their keen disappointment, when the doors opened to-day. Talesmen only were allowed to enter, although a great crowd had gathered at the court room door.

Three jurors were in the box when the trial was resumed to-day. Counsel expressed the opinion that the expedition with which the examination was proceeded with yesterday gave grounds for hope that the jury box will be filled by to-morrow night. Counsel on both sides have restricted their questions to the narrowest point and no time is being lost in useless quibbling.

Nan Patterson pays the same keen attention to the selection of the jurors that she did on the two previous trials. She listens to each question and answer carefully and indicates to her counsel whether the juror will be acceptable. Yesterday she turned down a talesman who was acceptable to both sides. The talesman in question was, apparently, desirable to both counsel and was about to be accepted when Nan turned to Mr. Levy and said:

"I do not want him. He does not suit me."

Levy seemed surprised and said after he had challenged the talesman:

"You must not think that every man who is acceptable will suit you. The talesman was satisfactory."

Counsel for the defence have indicated indirectly that they may not call the actress to the stand to testify. Several talesmen have been asked if they would be prejudiced against the defendant if she failed to take the stand in her own behalf.

NEW ENGLAND MOVE IN WAR IN EQUITABLE

Policy Holders Act to Protect Interests in Conflict, and Appoint Committee.

War in the ranks of the Equitable Life Assurance Society may reach Boston, and to protect the interests of policy holders in their section four New England men have constituted themselves a protective committee. They are President William Whitman of the Arlington Mills, Arthur Amory of Amory, Brown & Company, George P. Field of Field & Cowles, and Lawyer Edwin H. Abbott. The committee headquarters is at No. 161 Devonshire street. Mr. Whitman said:

"We do not assert that the interests of policy holders are jeopardized, or that the society has been mismanaged. We are organizing as a precautionary measure to be ready to protect our interests if any action should be necessary."

The committee has sent circulars to New England policy holders inviting them to send facts about their policies, if they wish to be represented.

General agents of the Equitable are again in session at the Hotel Savoy in New York to-day. Two important subjects are being considered. The first is the formation of a permanent organization of general agents and the other question is whether a committee shall be appointed to go to Albany to lay a petition before the Governor and the Legislature, asking that the charter of the Equitable be amended so as to allow policy holders to become directors.

Gage E. Tarbell, vice-president of the Equitable, was very much agitated by the statement of Henry H. Knowles, former superintendent of agencies, charging that Tarbell is the man who has stirred up all the trouble; that he is plotting to depose James H. Hyde, so that he can become president and declares that President Alexander is virtually a tool of Tarbell.

Vice-President Hyde scored on President Alexander by sending him a list of the checks he says he mailed to the latter in payment of his share of the profits of the J. H. Hyde's Associates Underwriting Syndicate and asking him to state if he received them. The checks were for a total of $61,446.92 and are eight in number. It has been asserted by Alexander's friends that he did not share in syndicate profits. It dealt in Japanese war loans, Oregon Short Line, Norfolk & Western and other stocks.

BEARS ROUTED; PRICES RUSH UP

Patriots' Day was celebrated in Wall street with a swift advance in prices, Louisville & Nashville running up 4½ points and easily assuming the leadership.

The victory of the bear party on Tuesday was turned into a rout to-day, and while there were moments during the early trading when it looked as though the bears would get control again this momentary weakness speedily turned to strength and the short interest was squeezed. Active issues gained on an average over 1 per cent for the day.

GOMPERS SCORES SUPREME COURT'S EDICT TO-NIGHT

Snapshot by a Boston American Staff Photographer.

SAMUEL GOMPERS ON HIS ARRIVAL IN BOSTON TO-DAY.

The head of the Federation of Labor, who spent a few hours here to-day on his way to Lawrence, is at the left of the group. In the centre is Henry Abrahams, secretary of the Central Labor Union, and at the right is George E. McNeill.

Federation's Head Will Discuss at Lawrence the Ruling Against Ten-Hour Labor Law.

President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, spent a few hours in Boston to-day on his way to Lawrence, where he is to deliver an address to-night at a mass meeting of union workers. His address will deal with the ten-hour decision of the United States Supreme Court, in which New York State control of the length of the working day was declared illegal.

Labor union leaders everywhere are condemning this decision as being a great blow at union labor, and President Gompers, who is known to share this view, is expected to comment severely upon the justice of the decision.

A reception committee of Boston labor leaders met President Gompers at the South Station at 7:15 o'clock, and accompanied him to the Quincy House, where New England labor union affairs were talked over at a breakfast given to the Federation's leader.

Frank H. McCarty, ex-president of the Boston Central Labor Union, was chairman of the reception committee, which consisted of Peter Collins, the newly elected president of the Central Labor Union; Philip Swett, Dennis D. Driscoll, ex-Alderman Frank Kneeland, George E. McNeill, Edward Cohen of Lynn and William Standcumb.

President Gompers took an early train for Lawrence, accompanied by President Morris C. Noonan of the Central Labor Union of Lawrence, and Robert S. Maloney, district organizer of the American Federation of Labor, also of Lawrence.

ON VERGE OF GREAT PANIC, SAYS LAWSON

Talks of "General Wall Street Hell" and Says Sharp Break in Copper Is Planned.

Thomas W. Lawson predicts a great panic in the stock market. In this month's issue of Everybody's magazine, which appears to-morrow, he says that there is to be a quick, sharp slump in Amalgamated. He warns the holders of "coppers" of a sharp break of three of four cents a pound in the metal is now being engineered.

Mr. Lawson in a circular which he is to-day sending out says:

"Everybody's Magazine, containing the first section of the long-promised first great crime of Amalgamated will issue to-morrow.

"In advertising it I will show we are on the verge of a great panic.

"In addition to the many factors which are fast shaping for a general Wall Street hell, I warn the holders of "Coppers" that a quick, sharp break of 3 to 4 cents a pound in the metal is being engineered.

"If a quick, sharp slump comes in Amalgamated—and it will—bear in mind Copper Range and Trinity will be the exceptions, as both will hold firm and then shoot ahead.

"During the past three weeks the reckless gang in Wall Street steered by 25 Broadway have been having their turn. It's mine now.

"As I have 'friends at court' who post me in advance of all their movements, I baited Range and Trinity and ran along with them on Amalgamated and Smelters, thereby securing more than enough profit to offset my paper losses on the Boston 'Coppers' I am short of.

"I take no stock in the legitimacy of a break in the price of the metal. When it comes it will be, in my opinion, artificial."

JEFFERSON PAST CRISIS, SAYS MESSAGE

Son of Veteran Actor, Ill in Florida, Gets Good News of Father's Condition.

Thomas Jefferson, the son of Joseph Jefferson, who is seriously sick at West Palm Beach, Florida, received a telegram at ten o'clock to-day, saying that the crisis in the illness of the famous actor had passed, and that he was considerably improved.

Later another telegram said:

"Father's condition greatly improved. We have high hopes.

"C. B. JEFFERSON."

It is hoped that with his iron constitution Mr. Jefferson may now pull through in spite of his advanced years.

A special dispatch from Palm Beach to the BOSTON AMERICAN said that just before midnight Dr. R. B. Potter, who is attending Joseph Jefferson, announced that the veteran actor was holding up well.

The family had retired for the night, but arrangements had been made for them to be called in a moment should the patient show signs of immediate dissolution.

Mr. Jefferson's indomitable courage had borne him up well all day. While members of the family and the doctors had no hope, the patient never for a moment gave up, and in the afternoon dictated telegrams to several friends telling them that he was better and would get well.

As night came on Mr. Jefferson's vitality again began to wane, and at 8 o'clock the family joined the doctor and nurse at the bedside, watching for the end. During the evening he called the members of his family one by one to the bedside, frequently whispering requests and assuring them that he would win in his fight for life.

TO REMOVE BARRETT FROM PANAMA POST

U. S. Government, It Is Said, Dissatisfied With His Work as Minister.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—John Barrett, United States Minister at Panama, will, it is reported, soon be removed from his office. Whether or not he will be given some other diplomatic position is not known, but it is understood the administration is dissatisfied with his conduct of affairs at the isthmus.

It is claimed that the recent correspondence between Minister Barrett, the State Department and the Panama Government regarding the settlement of questions concerning the government of the isthmus shows double dealing on the part of Minister Barrett, in that he reported to this government that the Panama Government wanted the negotiations conducted in Panama, when, as a matter of fact, it had actually expressed the desire that they should be carried on in Washington; that after getting the United States, on his representation, to agree to the plan he suggested, he told the Panama officials that it was the wish of the President of the United States that the negotiations should be conducted in Panama. Of course, Panama at once acquiesced in this arrangement.

Shortly afterward, however, the facts were disclosed, and these, coupled with the dissatisfaction on account of the establishment of the ports and postoffices in the canal zone, culminated in such a feeling against the United States as to necessitate the visit of Secretary of War Taft to Panama to allay the resentment.

It is said that as soon as Judge Magoon, the new Governor of the canal zone, arrives on the isthmus, about May 10, he will take over the diplomatic duties of the American legation.

CARNEGIE'S NIECE WEDS A COACHMAN

Nancy Carnegie Has Been for a Year Wife of Her Mother's Former Employe.

HER FAMILY ACCEPTS HIM

Better Than Worthless Duke—Andrew Carnegie

"We would rather have Nancy make a real love match, as this was, with a sober, moral, good man without money, like her husband, than to marry a drunken, worthless duke."

—Andrew Carnegie on his niece's marriage to a coachman.

Special to the Boston American.

PITTSBURG, April 19.—A story that has all the elements of romance has come to light through the simple announcement of the arrival from Europe of Mr. and Mrs. James Hever, and their infant daughter, according to the Pittsburg Times.

The bride—for Mr. and Mrs. Hever were married less than a year ago and were spending their honeymoon across the water—was formerly Miss Nancy Carnegie, one of the most prominent society girls of Pittsburg, New York and Fernandina, Fla., while the bridegroom comes from the humbler walks of life, having for a time been her mother's coachman.

The bride's father was the late Thomas M. Carnegie, and her mother was Lucy Coleman. Mrs. Hever is one of Andrew Carnegie's favorite nieces. The bridegroom was a widower with two children, one of whom was in a convent, but is now with her father.

Marriage Kept Secret.

Although the marriage took place in New York a year ago, it was kept strictly secret from everyone but the members of the bride's family and was not announced until a few days ago. Now the young people have been received by the bride's family and are at present being entertained at the home of Andrew Carnegie on Fifth avenue, New York.

Nancy Carnegie was always regarded as a very quiet girl. She was fond of cross-country riding, and it was her fondness for riding which brought her into contact with Hever, who often accompanied her as escort.

Gradually the two fell in love, despite the difference in their social stations, and it is said that, after gaining the affection of the young heiress, Hever braved a storm by going to Mrs. Carnegie and telling her of his love, declaring that he intended if possible to win the girl for his wife.

Her Sweetheart Discharged.

He was immediately discharged from the Carnegie stables at Pennsylvania and Lexington avenues, Homewood, and went to New York, where he started a riding academy. It was thought that the attachment had been broken off, but the two still corresponded, and last Winter, when the Carnegies went to New York, they were married by a Catholic priest, despite the fact that Miss Carnegie was a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The bride's mother was angry, but she did not become estranged from her daughter, and Hever was accepted as a member of the family.

"Better Than a Drunken Duke."

"We would rather have Nancy make a real love match, as this was, with a sober, moral, good man without money like her husband than to marry a drunken, worthless duke," said Andrew Carnegie to-day, in formally announcing the marriage of his niece.

At his home on Fifth avenue Mr. Carnegie was seen by a reporter just as he returned from a brisk walk in the park. Leading the way into the library he said:

"Well, yes, Nancy is married and we are glad of it. Our niece was married more than a year ago and sailed for Europe with her husband. The other day the couple arrived in New York, and were welcomed at the pier by Mrs. Carnegie, the young bride's two brothers and her sister.

Went to Carnegie Mansion.

"They came to our house, of course. There is no foundation for the report that the family is not reconciled.

"On the contrary, the family would much prefer to have Nancy make a real love match, as this was, with a sober, moral, good man without wealth, as her husband is, than to marry a drunken, worthless duke."

Mr. Carnegie, fresh from his open air exercise, was beaming with good nature. He smiled as he said:

"It was a love match pure and simple and we have received them with open arms."

When asked if either Mr. or Mrs. Hever were in the house he replied:

"No, they have just left us to visit some of our friends. They are making the rounds, you know," and Mr. Carnegie smiled as he swept his arm about in a circle. "Nancy is happily married and that is all we care about or want."

Mr. Carnegie, his wife and little daughter will sail for Europe next week. They go to spend the Summer at Skibo Castle, Scotland. They will take a large number of their servants with them and will not return until September or later.

COTTON DENIES COMPROMISE

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 19.—John B. Cotton denies knowledge of the rumor that Massachusetts is willing to compromise its controversy with him regarding his fee of ten per cent. for collecting $1,600,000 in war claims, upon the basis of $100,000.

"Such a proposition has not been made to me," said Mr. Cotton.

Among those present were Lieutenant-Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., Senator W. Murray Crane, Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, a large delegation of Massachusetts Congressmen and of the State Supreme and Superior Courts Justices and Mayors of thirteen Massachusetts cities.

"The influence of Senator Hoar's life," said Senator Daniel, "has spread over the nation. It has gone to the uttermost parts of the earth. Everywhere it will remain a force for the uplifting of mankind."

LYNN CHURCH CALLS LAZANBY

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, April 19.—The Second Congregational Church, one of the wealthy and fashionable churches of the city, has called to its pulpit the Rev. Albert Lazanby, formerly pastor of Dr. Robert Collyer's great church in Chicago, but now residing in Cambridge. Dr. Lazanby has accepted the call.

For the past forty years the church has had its pastor, Rev. Samuel B. Stewart, who has been appointed pastor emeritus. He will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday.

The new pastor was born in England and is a graduate of Oxford University.

FUNERAL OF HERO OF PUBLIC GARDEN

Funeral exercises were held at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross to-day for William J. Gallivan, who died of consumption contracted in rescuing a child from the Public Garden pond in the Winter of 1903.

Gallivan was found demented on Washington street last Sunday morning, clad only in an undershirt. A cabman took him to the City Hospital, where he died Monday night. Interment was at Calvary Cemetery.

Dear Sir:

"Ever since I was in the Army, I had more or less kidney trouble, and within the past year it became so severe and complicated that I suffered everything and was much alarmed—my strength and power was fast leaving me. I saw an advertisement of Swamp-Root and wrote asking for advice. I began the use of the medicine and noted a decided improvement after taking Swamp-Root only a short time.

I continued its use and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured and strong. In order to be very sure about this, I had a doctor examine some of my water to-day, and he pronounced it all right and in splendid condition.

I know that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable and does not contain any harmful drugs. Thanking you for my complete recovery and recommending Swamp-Root to all sufferers, I am."

Very truly yours,

I. C. RICHARDSON.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but it promptly cures kidney, liver and bladder troubles, the symptoms of which are—obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, poor digestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

PHILIPPINE JUDGE CHARGED WITH SEDITION

Mariano Toribio Accused of Inciting Conspiracy Against the United States.

EVIDENCE IN LETTERS

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Mariano Toribio, justice of the peace at Mariveles, Luzon, Philippine Islands, is under arrest on a charge of sedition. According to the advices received here he is charged with writing and circulating libels against the government, with intent to incite conspiracies and rebellion, and to stir up the people.

The letter which caused the arrest of Toribio was written to Governor Ramon Santos of the province of Albay, who turned it over to the detectives. In this letter Toribio, after declaring that all efforts to secure greater freedom have hitherto resulted only in further oppression, expresses himself as follows:

"We should therefore cause a general uprising throughout the entire archipelago, and we should commence and terminate this year the campaign for organization of which, together with a dictatorial government, I have already made arrangements. Plans of the campaign will be furnished you with reference to the day and hour of the actual cloudburst. Therefore act, and prepare with extreme caution your province. Each town is to defend its own, including women, if it be necessary. We will guarantee the success of the affair when the day arrives.

"Let me tell you that in this campaign there will be permitted no neutrals. Capital punishment will be applied to them and their families. By this, I mean that neutrals will be in the same fix they are to-day. Consequently they will be in hot water all the time. If neutral, the present government will punish them the same as it would an active participant. On the other hand, we will exercise and impose the full penalty of our laws, which are extremely rigorous, a thing that will be beneficial to us.

"I caution you to be alert and prudent in acting in this campaign. Choose persons of your deepest confidence to whom to trust all the secrets and let your undertaking be brief, which your patriotism and self-honor lead me to expect you to do."

JAMES I. RAYMOND DEAD.

STAMFORD, Ct., April 19.—James I. Raymond, head of the house of A. A. Vantine & Co. of New York, who was operated upon for appendicitis last Saturday, is dead.

The best known remedy in all America for the symptoms as above given is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—an honest and a safe remedy which no woman can afford to lose the opportunity of trying for the cure of those distressing complaints which weaken a woman's vitality. Dr. Pierce not only assures you that his "Favorite Prescription" is honestly made, but he lets you know just what it contains. It is now nearly forty years since he put up this prescription in a form to be easily obtained at every drug store. Previous to that time Dr. Pierce practiced medicine and made the diseases of women his specialty. He found that there was one prescription that cured ninety-nine per cent. of his cases. The ingredients were taken from nature in the shape of a non-alcoholic extract of medicinal roots and plants whose curative properties are generally recognized by the medical profession throughout the country, and whose harmless character you can learn from any druggist or physician. Dr. Pierce early learned how to combine these ingredients in just the right proportion to make a harmonious and efficient remedy. Experienced chemists under his direction use great care in the preparation of this non-alcoholic compound.

THE PROOF.

Dr. Pierce is not afraid of letting the public know all the truth about his "Favorite Prescription." It contains a non-alcoholic extract of the following American medicinal plants:

Lady's Slipper (Cypripedium Pubescens).
Black Cohosh (Cimicifuga Racemosa).
Unicorn root (Chamælirium Luteum).
Blue Cohosh (Caulophyllum Thalictroides).
Golden Seal (Hydrastis Canadensis).

King's American Dispensatory says of BLUE COHOSH (Caulophyllum): "This remedy is most valuable to relieve irritation of the organs in debilitated patients. It has an established reputation as a remedy for nervous excitement due to those disorders peculiar to women as well as for the relief of pain, with fullness, weight and pain in the legs, debility, crampy pains, etc."

"Golden Seal is very useful in catarrhal states of the mucous membranes."

"Black Cohosh or Black Snake-root—Our early American Indians set a high value on in diseases of women." It is surpassed by no other drug, in congestive conditions of the parts where there are dragging pains and tenderness.

Ladies' slipper is "nerve stimulant and tonic, improving both circulation and nutrition of the nerve centers—favoring sleep and cheerful condition of the mind; of service in mental depression, nervous headache, irregularities of women with despondency."

Miss Agnes Leopold, who has one of the leading dress-making establishments in Neenah, Wisconsin, writes Dr. Pierce as follows:

Dear Sir—"A few years ago when my health was greatly impaired on account of womb trouble, I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The first month's use benefited me greatly, I had less pain at the period and did not have to go to bed as had been the custom. I felt very pleased and kept taking the 'Prescription' for four months, when I was in perfect health. Good health is a great blessing, and I feel that I owe it all to your 'Favorite Prescription,' and consequently am very grateful to you."

Thousands of weak and sick women can trace the beginning of a new life of perfect health to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Sick and ailing women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. Pierce, care Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures weak and aching backs, headaches, nervousness and other womanly ailments by curing the womanly diseases which cause them.

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for women's ills.

For the purpose of showing the purity and honesty of his medicines, the "Favorite Prescription" and the "Golden Medical Discovery," Dr. R. V. Pierce has thrown open to public inspection his laboratories and works in Buffalo.

At any time visitors are made welcome and shown through the establishment by competent guides.

These guides explain the detailed and scientific work of the skilled chemists and just how and of what the modern medicine is made.

To every visitor is also explained the system by which every user of Doctor Pierce's medicines receives individual care from one or more specialists.

For forty years Dr. Pierce has been actively engaged in the manufacture of his prescriptions. His fully-equipped laboratory has grown and expanded until now it is the largest and most complete one known.

A Dollar's Worth Free To Any Rheumatic Sufferer

I ask no deposit—no reference—no security. There is nothing to risk—nothing to promise—nothing to pay, either now or later. Any Rheumatic sufferer who does not know my remedy may have a full dollar's worth free to try.

I willingly make this liberal offer because I know that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy may be relied upon ALWAYS to bring the utmost relief that medicine can. Years before I discovered this remedy, I studied the nature of Rheumatism. For Rheumatism is really Crystalized Poison!

Your blood is always full of poison—the poison you eat and drink and breathe into your system. It is the purpose of the blood to absorb and carry off this very poison. And the kidneys, which are the blood filters, are expected to cleanse the blood and send it back through the system clean, to gather more poison which, they, in turn, will eliminate.

But sometimes the kidneys fail. And sometimes, from some other cause, the blood gets so full of poison that they cannot absorb it all. This is the start of Rheumatism. The poison accumulates and crystalizes. The crystals look like little grains of sugar or of fine white sand. The blood carries them and they increase in size. Then, when it can carry them no longer, it deposits them in a joint—on a bone—anywhere.

The twinge in your leg—the dull ache in your arm on a rainy day—these are the outward signs of the unseen crystals. And the twisted limbs and unspeakable anguish of the sufferer who has allowed his symptoms to go unheeded and unattended for years—these are the evidences of what Rheumatism, neglected, can do.

Rheumatism includes lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, gout—for all these are the results of rheumatic poison in the blood.

Plainly, the first thing to do is to remove the poison. But this is not enough. The FORMATION of the poison must be stopped, so that nature may have a chance to dissolve and eliminate the crystals which have already formed. Unless this is done there can be no cure—no permanent relief.

I searched the whole earth for a specific for Rheumatism—something that I or any physician could feel safe in prescribing—something that we could count on not only occasionally, but ALWAYS. For the ravages of Rheumatism are everywhere and genuine relief is rare.

I spent twenty years in experimenting before I felt satisfied that I had a certain remedy for this dread disease,—a remedy which would not only clean out the poison, but one which would stop its formation.

Certain Relief

The secret lay in a wonderful chemical I found in Germany. When I found this chemical, I knew that I could make a Rheumatic cure that would be practically certain. But even then, before I made an announcement—before I was willing to put my name on it,—I made more than 2,000 tests! And my failures were but 2 per cent.

This German chemical is not the only ingredient I use in Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure—but it made the remedy possible—made possible an achievement which, I doubt not, could have been made in no other way.

This chemical was very expensive. The duty, too, was high. In all it cost me $4.90 per pound. But what is $4.90 per pound for a REAL remedy for the world's most painful disease?—for a REAL relief from the greatest torture human beings know?

I don't mean that Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure can turn bony joints into flesh again—that is impossible. But it will drive from the blood the poison that causes pain and swelling, and then that is the end of the pain and swelling—the end of the suffering—the end of Rheumatism. That is why I can afford to make this liberal offer—that is why I can afford to spend the FIRST dollar that Rheumatic sufferers, the world over, may learn of my remedy.

Simply Write Me

The offer is open to everyone, everywhere, who has not tried my remedy. But you must write ME for the free dollar package order. I will send you an order on your druggist which he will accept as gladly as he would accept a dollar. He will hand you from his shelves a standard sized package and he will send the bill to me. There are no conditions—no requirements. All that I ask you to do is to write—write to-day. I will send you my book on Rheumatism beside. It is free. It will help you to understand your case. Address Dr. Shoop, Box C. 898, Racine, Wis.

Before a crowd of 2,000 spectators this morning Fred Tenney's team of Boston National Leaguers won a close game from the Brooklyns on the South End grounds. Errors were plentiful, and if the men had been able to hit the ball better there surely must have been many more runs. But Wilhelm and Stricklett, the originator of the spit ball, were on their mettle, and both pitched great games.

Wilhelm was particularly effective. Only two hits were made off his curves and one of these was a puny bunt. Most of Boston's hits were of the scratch order. Details of the game follow:

VIC WILLIS TO PITCH FOR TENNEY'S TEAM

BOSTON NATIONALS' CRACK TWIRLER AT LAST ACCEPTS CLUB'S TERMS.

Boston baseball fans will be pleased to hear that Vic Willis will pitch for the Boston National League team this year after all. The club made him a fresh offer which he accepted, and the great twirler will report to Captain Fred Tenney next Friday.

Willis drew a salary of $4,000 last season. The club owners sent him a contract this Spring calling for $2,400. Willis felt aggrieved and announced that he could make more money playing independent ball in Pennsylvania. The club then raised its offer to $3,000, but Willis refused to consider it, and a few days ago it was announced that he had signed with the Altoona club, an independent organization.

Mr. Soden made one more effort, however, offering him $3,500. This was acceptable, and Willis wired that he would sign a contract and report as soon as needed. He was told to meet Tenney on Friday.

It is thought Willis has acted wisely. If he played independent ball after refusing a contract from the Boston Nationals he could not get back into organized ball unless he paid a fine of $1,000.

CHARTER OAKS WON TEAM RACE AT NORTH END

Over 10,000 people turned out to witness the boys' and men's running races at the North End Park to-day, run under the auspices of the city of Boston. The events began prompt at 10 o'clock and continued until late in the afternoon, there being an intermission of two hours, from 12 until 2 o'clock, for lunch. Following are the results up to press time:

BRIGHTON HIGH WINS GAME

At Rogers Park, Brighton, to-day, the Brighton High School team defeated the Beverly High School team in an uninteresting game of baseball by the score of 15 to 4. Pitcher Woodlock of the Brighton team was easily the star of the game, having sixteen strikeouts to his credit at the end of the ninth inning.

The game was easily Brighton's from the time the first ball was pitched until Beverly's last hope disappeared with the fanning of two men in succession in the ninth inning. Up to the first of the ninth the score was 15 to 1, three runners scoring on an error in that inning.

BURNET AT LONG ODDS WON FIRST

Special to the Boston American.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, April 19.—The Rose Stakes for two-year-old fillies was the bright particular feature of the card to-day. Though this stake was of no great monetary consequence, it served to bring before the consideration of racegoers the much-talked-of Lady Valentine. She was one of the entries, together with the Sempronius filly, Society Bud, brought up here from the Tennessee training grounds by E. E. Smathers, because he thought her a sure enough star; Pythia, the Horoscope filly from James R. Keene's stable, and other worthy, but perhaps less interesting juveniles.

The sun shone warmer to-day. The track is still puzzling the form players. Fast time is made in the mile and seven furlong races, while the best sprinters hang at five furlongs. The footing seems to be hard and fast in spots.

The Results.

FIRST RACE—Selling; maidens, two-year-olds, four furlongs: Burnett, 99 (Baird), 10 to 1 and 1 to 4 won; Superior boy, 108 (O'Neil), 2 to 1 and 4 to 5 second; Tangier, 97 (J. Kelley) 7 to 1 and 5 to 2 third. Time—:49 2-5. Volo, Evelyn J., Moonshine, Niantic, Alkestis, Babe B., Edith James also ran.

SECOND RACE—Handicap; three-year-olds and upwards; five furlongs—Race King, 115 (Lyne), 8 to 1 and 3 to 1, won; Jerry C., 114 (Odom), 7 to 1 and 5 to 2, second; Workman, 115 (Miller), 5 to 1 and 8 to 5, third. Time—1:01 4-5. Tearess, Handzarra, Chystia also ran.

WALTHOUR AT CHARLES.

Bobby Walthour, the champion pace-follower of the world, will ride his first race for over a year in this section at Charles River Park this afternoon. His opponents will be Jimmy Moran, his nearest rival for paced honors, and Nat Butler, that sterling old rider from Cambridge. The distance is thirty miles, and, as all the riders are in good condition, there should be some fast and exciting work.

E. H. S. VS. DORCHESTER.

The game between the English High and Dorchester High schools, in the Intercollegiate League, for this morning at 10:30 o'clock, at the Dorchester High School grounds, promises to be a hard fought one.

FRANKLIN FIELD, Dorchester, April 19.—Matinee racing was successfully inaugurated on the new speedway named the Franklin Field Speedway, by the members of the Dorchester Driving Club.

DORCHESTER HIGH WON

Dorchester High School baseball team defeated English High's nine at Dunbar Field, Dorchester, 5 to 2.

It was the first game in the Interscholastic Baseball League. Myers, the English High pitcher, was handicapped by a lame leg and couldn't field his position well. Score by innings:

English High	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	—2

BOXING BOUTS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, April 19.—The assembly at Albany to-day by a vote of 92 to 16 passed the bill of Senator Frawley authorizing four three-minutes rounds of boxing by amateurs with eight ounce gloves, under the rules and auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, or any domestic amateur athletic association allied with the union.

While the bill to legalize amateur boxing bouts has not been signed by the Governor, the fact that it has passed both houses of the legislature is accepted by the admirers of that form of sport as a most notable victory.

GILBERT WON OUT ON FOUL

BALTIMORE, April 19.—Kid Gilbert of Baltimore was given the decision over Jack Ashton of Philadelphia on a foul in the ninth round.

Ashton started to wrestle, when the fight was stopped and given to Gilbert. The bout was fast and hot, honors being nearly even at the end of the eighth round.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PARK, Washington, April 19.—The weather moderated considerably this morning, and this afternoon's game between the Nationals and Champions was played with some degree of comfort, although it is still quite cool. Yesterday's victory of the local team has stirred up the fans considerably, as it is the first time in two years that a Washington club has been out of last place in the championship race, and a good crowd saw the game this afternoon.

Manager Stahl decided to trot out Case Patten, the left-handed crackerjack, and a fine contest was promised, with good support on both sides. Charley Farrel's hands are still in pretty bad shape.

O'BRIEN MEETS FELTZ TO-NIGHT

Both Rouse O'Brien and Tommy Feltz are in the best shape for their fifteen-round battle at the Douglas A. C. to-night, which means that the fans will witness one of the toughest ring bouts that has taken place at the Chelsea club.

Boston American WOMAN'S Home Magazine

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX—BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE

The Authoress Has Shown Her Genius in Many Fields

GENIUS has been always rare; and few geniuses have shown their gift in more than one direction. Among possessors of genius, men have been more frequent than women. Yet Mrs. Wilcox is a genius, and she has given the world products of her gift in not two only, but in three distinct departments of literature.

She has always been a poet, and her poems have from the first achieved distinction. She wrote verses which have entered into the English language. Later in life she felt the impulse to deliver in prose the wider and deeper thoughts on moral and social philosophy and on human relations which experience in the world has taught her. Her success in this new field was as immediate and as signal as in the other. And now, after a career which might well satisfy ambition, she has suddenly made still another departure, and has found her brows crowned with the difficult laurels of the dramatic stage.

Labor Refreshes Her

When I found Mrs. Wilcox she appeared as alert and animated as if the great and honorable labors she has performed had the effect of refreshing rather than of fatiguing her. "I have been in San Francisco," she told me, "attending the production there of my play, 'Mizpah,' which I wrote in collaboration with Mr. Luscombe Searelle. I had been entirely unprepared for its success. I had never imagined that I could write a play in verse that could attract an audience. But I feel that much is due to my collaborator. He is a man of great gifts; he has the faculty of constructing plots; he understands the development of character on the stage. My only power was that of expression, and it is only in that direction that I can claim credit for a share in our success. I seem to be able to put things in a way that pleases people. But though our play has been running hardly three weeks, and our houses have been full and enthusiastic, even yet I can scarcely believe it is not a dream."

Men Appreciate "Mizpah"

"It is wonderful!" Mrs. Wilcox exclaimed. "People go to see it twice and three times. On the train the conductor spoke to me of how it had affected him. I told him how it surprised me that men should care for such a play in verse; but he said that men could feel such things as well as women, though they might ordinarily hide their feelings more. And I met a lady who asked me if I remembered her. I had to tell her that I did not. She said she had been present when, more than twenty years ago, one of my poems had for the first time been read in public, and asked me if I didn't remember what General Sheridan, who was there, had said about it. I feel almost frightened by such a response to what I am able to say."

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

"You have seen 'Mizpah' performed?"

"Yes, I went two or three times," Mrs. Wilcox replied. "The last time I found the audience had recognized me—the manager must have told them I was there. They wanted me on the stage. I didn't want to go, but I was forced to, though. I stipulated that I would do so only if all the actors were there with me. But the audience was not satisfied, and after I had stood there with the others they wanted me alone. While I was talking with the manager about it, behind the curtain, all at once the curtain went up again, and he left me all by myself. It was the first time I had looked at an audience over the footlights—that great dark multitude, with the white faces in front. They were applauding and calling for a speech. I said, 'I'm frightened to death!' and I ran off. But it seemed that I had said about the right thing after all."

Mrs. Wilcox told this charming story with intonations and gestures so naive and effective that it occurred to me she might well have won triumphs as an actress had she chosen to attempt the stage.

"Mr. Searelle could not be there," she continued; "he had been very ill, and the doctors thought he would die. I visited him, and he said that I did him good; and really he is now getting better. But he ought to have most of the credit for the success," she repeated earnestly. "I could never have done it without him."

"Writing Makes Me Stronger"

"A man I know said the other day that now I would be relieved of the drudgery—as he called it—of newspaper writing! It made me indignant. How could he call it drudgery to write things that are read in the Hearst papers by more than a million people, and that help them and do them good! Letters come to me from everywhere—twenty or thirty a day. I had a letter lately from a man who told me I had saved him from suicide. It is hard to answer so many letters, for I write the answers myself. I cannot keep a secretary to do it. But the writing of the articles doesn't tire me—it makes me stronger. Once, during a journey in the train of a few days, I wrote six of them, and they were good ones. I wrote them because I wanted to. I was full of them. That is not work!"

This was a remarkable statement, as anyone may determine by trying to write such an article as Mrs. Wilcox's himself. Nevertheless, Mrs. Wilcox's appearance was a confirmation of her words. She is not weary of well-doing, and her well-doing does her good. There is no comprehending these things by ordinary standards.

Her Absolute Sincerity

During our talk she had frequently tried to turn the conversation into channels leading away from her personal affairs, and I, of course, had as persistently turned it back again, for the world has a right to feel interested in all that concerns this woman. But she now made an appeal that was touching in its sincerity. "In interviews," she said, "people are always made to talk about themselves; and when one reads it afterward it seems so terribly egotistical. But what can one do about it!"

I could only feel that some people can talk about themselves without egotism, and that Mrs. Wilcox could not be egotistical if she tried. There is in her a sincerity so absolute that she can say things concerning her own deeds and feelings which a self-conscious or a self-centred person could not venture to say. What interests her is not her own connection with great and good things, but the great and good things themselves. Her success gratifies her, not because it is hers, but because it means that the public is able to accept and appreciate what is worthy. She loves mankind, and all she does aims to make them better and happier. If this be egotism, let us all try to be egotists.

SCARLET LIES

By X and Z, Authors of Married to Mystery

CHAPTER XLIV.—Continued.

AND Stephen Holland, having dismissed his footman, laughed and joked with them all, and took out bottle after bottle from the other hamper—port and sherry and claret, and spirits, and bulky bottles with gold paper round their necks.

In a very short time quite a different atmosphere reigned in that little room. First of all, Stephen Holland had insisted that Little Dorrit should have some grapes and sweets, and he carried them to her himself as she lay on her couch, and heard about her accident, and said it was a beastly shame, and that he would see that she should never do those dangerous feats again. Then he came back and sat down with them at the table, and ate his hearty meal, and he seemed possessed of the very spirit of reckless gayety.

They all laughed right through that splendid, unexpected meal; and, because in all artists, whatever their station, there is a certain spirit of cheery good fellowship and true-heartedness ,they soon felt quite at their ease with him, and the pert and pretty Lola ended up by crowning his handsome head with a paper crown out of a cracker.

And then they pushed the table away, and when they were all on their feet George Lang took up his glass of frothing champagne and cried in his stentorian voice:

"Friends, here's to our good friend, Mr. Holland! Long life to him and good health and prosperity, and all that he may want!"

They all drank the toast rapturously, and laughed and shouted; and, standing, Stephen raised his glass.

"And I drink to you all," he said, "who have helped me to spend this pleasant Christmas evening. I wish you health and prosperity, and I thank you for having entertained me, your unexpected guest."

He raised his glass to his lips. Just then the door opened, and a man came into the room, and Stephen's glass fell with a crash to the ground and was shivered to atoms, and the yellow wine ran over the shabby carpet.

Stephen Holland stood still, looking at the man who had come in. It was Karl Karoff, or Mr. Jones, as he was known here, who had responded to Mr. Trippet's invitation.

A strange, startled silence fell upon the little company. They saw that Stephen Holland had gone white to his very lips, and that he was staring in a dazed, stony way at the musician, who glared back defiantly, ferociously, as he leaned against the wall.

Mrs. Lang caught her breath, with a gasp that nearly choked her. She saw that interchange of glances; she saw a look of undoubted recognition pass between Stephen Holland and Karl Karoff. What did it mean? The recognition brought ashen fear into Holland's face, and defiant challenge into the musician's. Heavens! Did they know each other, these two? It seemed to her that the whole universe spun round her.

Here, in this little room, were all the actors in this strange drama of human life and destiny. Only one was missing—the one who lay in his grave. What did it all mean? What was it all leading to—what catastrophe?

She steadied herself by holding on to a chair. When she opened her eyes again, she saw that the momentary tension had passed. Stephen Holland's face was white, but set. The others had formed a ring round him, and, led by George Lang's hearty voice, they were singing with fervor, "For he's a jolly good fellow," to the time-honored tune.

She realized that what had seemed ages to her was but a moment. Karl Karoff's entrance had passed almost unnoticed in the general excitement. He was still leaning against the wall, a strange smile playing about his lips.

CHAPTER XLV.

The Arm of the Law.

THE great Detective-Inspector Gerrard and Police Constable Tagg of the Mapelia police, both attired in plain clothes, and both resembling in appearance superior men servants in mufti, left the Mapelia police station in company.

It was 10 o'clock on Christmas Day. They strode off briskly in step up the High street and neither spoke until they reached the Guildhall. Then Gerrard said, in a low voice:

"You are quite certain he hasn't anybody with him?"

"Quite, sir," answered Tagg.

"No accomplices?"

"None. I've watched him closely for over a week. He's obviously alone and hiding."

"So it would appear," remarked Gerrard, quietly.

"He has no communication with anyone not connected with the circus and he lives an exemplary life of regularity."

"Calls himself Jones, and plays the first violin in Revelle's Band?"

"Yes, sir; and plays it jolly well, too, if I'm any judge."

"Very funny," mused Gerrard, "that, if he is really the man, Karl Karoff, the ex-convict, and the man who, from motives of revenge of unreasoning hatred, killed the late Stephen Holland, he should choose Mapelia as a hiding place!"

"I don't know anything about that, sir," said Tagg; "nor do I know anything against the man."

"We certainly have not sufficient evidence to justify a jury in convicting him in connection with the Holland case," agreed Gerrard, a little ruefully, it must be confessed; "but enough, I am sure, to justify us in apprehending him, when we take into consideration the fact that Karl Karoff had reason to entertain a violent hatred for the deceased Judge Holland—that Judge Holland tried him and sentenced him to an exceptionally and, one might almost say, an unjustifiably long term of penal servitude—that he was released a week or two before the murder was committed—that he was known to have been in the neighborhood at the time——"

"Yes," interrupted Tagg; "there are plenty of witnesses to prove that."

"And," continued Gerrard, "the fact that he, in company with another man, attempted to levy blackmail on the present Stephen Holland, combined with the fact that he has failed to report himself as a ticket-of-leave-man, certainly shows a very mysterious and suspicious record."

"I should say it was quite enough!" exclaimed the young policeman enthusiastically.

But Gerrard shook his head.

"You are young, Tagg, and you are too apt to jump to conclusions."

"It seems to me, sir," retorted P. C. Tagg, "that Mr. Holland could help us in this a great deal more than he has."

"Quite true," assented Gerrard; "but I have hesitated to trouble him upon so painful a subject."

"It is a very important subject to him, nevertheless," said Tagg.

"But obviously Mr. Holland does not consider that any further details concerning the enmity between this Karl Karoff and his late father are necessary to us; nor does he exhibit any anxiety to explain the precise nature of the attempt at blackmail."

P. C. Tagg gave vent to a somewhat contemptuous exclamation.

"That's all very well, sir!" he cried. "But surely it is of the utmost importance to have the fullest particulars and details on both points?"

Gerrard nodded glumly.

"It is a difficult matter, Tagg," he said, "an exceedingly difficult matter, and one which requires a very great amount of diplomatic tact. Of course, if we ever make out a case against this man Jones, it will have to come out at the trial."

"Then why not now?" asked Tagg, almost indignantly. "I wish, sir, you'd let me have a talk with Mr. Holland."

Gerrard laughed softly to himself. He was growing genuinely attached to, and immensely interested in, this confident young local policeman, who took such a keen private and professional interest in the great Holland murder case.

"And then," Tagg went on, "what about the blackmailing business, sir? Didn't Mr. Holland give you any details as to that?"

"Stephen Holland gave me clearly to understand that it had no connection with the Holland murder, and that he had no wish to take me into his confidence in the other matter. Mr. Holland may have good reasons—who knows?"

"I call it very funny," said the young policeman, deliberately, "very funny indeed!"

"You see, Tagg," Gerrard explained, "this whole business was the result, as you might say, of an accident. Mr. Holland came to me one day and asked me to find out where two men, calling themselves respectively Smith and Jones, who he had seen at a certain lodging house, and who had unsuccessfully attempted to blackmail him, had gone to. The result of the department's inquiries was unsuccessful, to a certain extent. Both men had disappeared; but we ascertained the antecedents of the man Jones, and identified in him the ex-convict Karoff. When we reported this to Mr. Holland he was intensely surprised, evidently never suspecting anything of the sort. It was there and then that he gave me the information upon which I have based all my subsequent proceedings."

"There's a tremendous lot to be found out!" remarked Tagg sombrely. "We'll never be able to bring it home to him with the scanty facts we have at present!"

"I agree; but, at the same time, I think we must take the risk, and catch him while we are sure of him. I have, as you know, postponed the arrest from day to day, hoping that, by keeping a close espionage over him, he might give himself away, or, at any rate, throw some light upon his seemingly incomprehensible behavior in joining Revelle's Circus in Mapelia, but it's too risky. We dare not go on any longer. We must have him under lock and key. By the way, Tagg, you are quite certain of your information?"

"Quite, sir."

"And the house in Church street is being watched?"

"Closely, at front and back. There's a sort of Christmas party going on there, I fancy."

"Humph! Rather a surprise for him, eh? And on this day, of all days!" Detective-Inspector Gerrard gave vent to a grim little laugh. "Still, it's got to be done. I dare not risk it another day. Once he got a breath of wind as to what we were up to, and—pshaw!—he'd slip us, like he slipped away from Boston. Look at the other chap. He's never been traced yet—the man Smith, or whatever his real name is."

"Better get a cab while we have the chance," said Gerrard, hailing a four-wheeler, the solitary occupant of the cab-stand at the corner. "We'll bring him straight back to the station, charge him formally, and then get Mr. Holland to come over and identify him."

The two officers entered the cab.

"Drive to the corner of Church street, by the drill hall. When I whistle, drive up to 76, on the right. And when you've picked us up—there'll be three of us then—go back as hard as you like to the Central Police Station."

"Right you are, sir," replied the cabman. "An arrest, eh?"

"Most probably," answered Gerrard.

"Not likely to be any violence, I suppose?" Gerrard queried.

"Shouldn't think so," said Tagg. "Anyhow, we've got about a dozen of our fellows within call, and"——

"Hallo!" exclaimed Gerrard, interrupting. "Here we are; and what a crowd!"

"Salvation Army at it again," said Tagg.

The cab pulled up by the curb as directed. Gerrard and Tagg promptly alighted. Gerrard nodded to the cabman.

"I understand, sir," said the man. "On the right, you said, wasn't it?"

"Yes; only a few doors down the street," explained P. C. Tagg.

And then, as he strode off with Gerrard, he suddenly exclaimed:

"Hallo! there's a cab at the door. What's up?"

"A cab!" retorted Gerrard. "That's not a cab, man! It's a private brougham, and——"

"By jove, sir, if it isn't one of the Holland carriages."

"One of the Holland carriages!" murmured Gerrard, with unconcealed excitement. "What the dickens does it mean?"

Tagg could hardly control his anxiety and his fear lest anything should have gone wrong at the last moment.

Two men were walking slowly up and down on the opposite side of the street, and two other men were approaching them about a hundred yards further on. They were plain clothes officers of the Mapelia police force, watching Mrs. Rickett's lodging house.

One of them, seeing Gerrard and Tagg, strode quickly toward them.

"What's wrong? asked Gerrard.

"Nothing, sir, so far. No one has left the house."

"But what's the Holland carriage doing outside the door?" asked Tagg.

"It's Mr. Holland!" exclaimed Gerrard. "What, in the name of all that's wonderful, is Mr. Holland doing in Church street to-night—to-night of all nights?"

"Most curious thing you ever heard of!" answered the sergeant.

And he went on briefly to explain how the brougham had driven up just over half an hour ago, loaded with hampers enough to feed a camp; and Mr. Holland had taken them all into the house, where there appeared to be a sort of Christmas jollification going on.

"Well, I'm hanged!" said Tagg.

And Inspector Gerrard's exclamation was even more forcible.

And do you mean to say he is in there?"

"Giving the party, from all I can make out."

The three police officers exchanged bewildered glances.

To both Gerrard and Tagg, moreover, there was an additional element of mystery attaching to the incident, for how could it be possible for the man Karl Karoff and Stephen Holland to be under the same roof.

This was indeed an unexpected development, and, for the moment, the astute and resourceful Gerrard was at a total loss as to what course he was to take.

The more impulsive Tagg, however, did not hesitate.

"You are quite certain Jones is in the house?" he asked.

"Quite, young man," replied the sergeant sharply. "Do you think I'd be talking to Mr. Gerrard like this if he wasn't."

Tagg was used to treatment of this sort, and never for a moment allowed it to affect him.

"Then there's nothing for it, sir," he said, addressing the official, "but to go in and effect the arrest. What do you say, sir?"

Gerrard shrugged his shoulders.

"I confess I'm a bit puzzled but it's got to be done. Come on, Tagg! This looks as if it's going to be more interesting, and posibly a bit more difficult, than it looked at first."

TO BE CONTINUED.

Creamed Oysters

Drain the liquor from one pint of oysters, strain and add enough cream or rich milk to make a half pint. Bring this to the boiling point and thicken with a small tablespoonful each of butter and flour Drop in the oysters, cook for two minutes longer, season with tabasco and serve on toast or with hot buttered crackers.

Scalloped Onions

Cook half-a-dozen onions of medium size in salted water until tender. Drain and lay in a buttered baking dish without breaking. Pour on half a cup of thin cream, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and cover the top with finely rolled cracker crumbs. Put bits of butter over the top, and set in the oven to heat and brown the crumbs.

Stuffed Dates with Cream

Remove the centre from the washed dates. Fill the cavities with English walnut or peanut meat and press into original shape. Stew in hot water until tender, adding at last the sugar and lemon juice. Serve with whipped cream.

Boston Tea-Cake

One pound of flour, one pound of sugar, one-half pound of butter, two eggs and one and one-half teaspoonfuls of cinnamon. Mix the butter and sugar, then the eggs, and lastly the flour, into which sprinkle the cinnamon. Roll thin, cut with a cake-cutter, glaze each cake with the beaten white of egg, and sprinkle nutmeg and cinnamon over them. Bake in a moderately quick oven.

Scalloped Cheese

In a buttered baking dish alternate bread crumbs with layers of thin slices of cheese. To the crumbs add celery salt or chopped celery, pepper and small pieces of butter, crumbs last. Add a well-beaten egg, and one-half pint of rich cream. Bake in a hot oven. Whoever likes cheese will surely enjoy it in this way.

WHAT IS THE FUNNIEST THING BABY EVER SAID

FAIRY tales are not wanted in this contest. They are actual "sayings" of actual children. That's why Greater Boston is charmed—fascinated by this unique competition.

The conditions are few and simple. Here they are:

Letters should be bright and short. Write on one side of the paper. Send all the sayings you wish.

A DAILY PRIZE of six splendid photographs—larger than cabinets—will be awarded. Address Bright Sayings Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, 80-83 Summer street, Boston.

Committee of award:

HON. WILLIAM M. OLIN, Secretary of State.
HEZEKIAH BUTTERWORTH, author.
JOHN B. FITZPATRICK, former president of the Clover Club.
KATE GANNETT WELLS of the State Board of Education.
MISS KATHERINE CONWAY, editor of the Pilot.
MRS. JULIA E. DUFF, member of the Boston School Committee.

This week's winners in the Bright Sayings Contest will be announced in next Sunday's Boston American

FLORENCE EVELYN GLINES.

TOO MUCH RIDE

At the age of four, my little cousin Florence was taken by her mother on a long journey by electric cars. At first she enjoyed the trip, but finally became very restless. Her mother inquired anxiously, at various times, if her head ached, to which Florence replied very briefly, "No." At last, becoming impatient at her mother's persistent questioning, she answered, quite sharply:

"Anything don't ache; I'm getting too much ride!"

MRS. O. A. MINOT.
Newport ave., Wollaston.

COULDN'T STAND DOG

I had told four-year-old Walter that God was with him at all times. Soon after he started down the street, our dog following. Turning quickly around he said:

"Go back; it is bad enough to have God following me everywhere, without you."

MRS. CHARLES NEWTH.
No. 22 Everett street, Lynn.

GOLDEN RULE

My little son (then five years), when returning from Sunday school, would always tell me what the lesson was. This particular Sunday he said the text was the Golden Rule:

"Whatever others do to you, do it unto them ever so much."

C. B. SHATTUCK.
No. 110 Bellingham avenue, Beachmont.

DIDN'T BELIEVE ALL

Mamma—Frankie, didn't your conscience tell you that you had done wrong?

Frank (aged five)—Yes'm, but I don't believe everything I hear.

MRS. CHARLES NEWTH.
No. 22 Everett street, Lynn.

PUT UP LOWER

When my daughter, Phyllis, was two and a half years old she was much interested in the events of school life of her elder brother and sister.

One day she came running in, much excited, and said:

"Mamma, I have just come from school. I passed my zaminations, and teacher put me up in one of the tower grades."

MRS. P. J. WOLTZ.
No. 22 Edison street, Quincy.

MIGHT FALL OFF EARTH

When my little Joseph was four years old two of my eldest children were discussing about the world being round. Joseph, coming over to my side, said:

"Say, mamma, is the world round?"

"Yes, dear, the world is round."

After a few moments reflection:

"Mamma, do you fall off when you come to the bend?"

MRS. H. J. SAVAGE.
No. 10 Milton street.

PREFERRED CARPENTRY

My little son, Nesbitt, aged about three and a half years, had been naughty, and I spoke to him and told him if he was a good boy he would become an angel when he died and go to heaven. About a month later he was standing at the window watching some carpenters at work on a house, when he suddenly turned and said:

"Mamma, I don't want to be an angel. I want to be a carpenter."

MRS. ROBERT SILVERMAN.
No. 466 Broadway, Revere.

DIG MOON OUT

A cute saying of my little daughter, Viola, at the age of two years was:

"Mamma, if you should take a ladder and dig the moon from the sky, would it leave a hole?" MRS. ALBERT H. BASS.
Lanesville.

PLEASE BITE ROPE

My little boy, John, when two years old, was very fond of travel, and I, being afraid he would get lost, tied him to the piazza, allowing him enough rope to go to the end of the yard, which is very long.

This he did not like very well, and when my neighbor's dog came into the yard John said:

"Tricksey, ill oo pease bite the rope, so I can go out?"

MRS. J. F. MITCHELL.
No. 314 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown.

HIS DOWNSTAIRS TEETH

My little boy, John, of three, who was bothered with a toothache in the upper part of his mouth, came in to-day crying, and when questioned said:

"I have got a toothache, but not in my upstairs teeth this time, it is in my downstairs ones." MRS. L. T. KING.
No. 527 Ashmont street, Dorchester.

A-DOIN' TO FUNEWAL

Harry Grant, my little nephew, aged five years, came to my room with his mother to see me when I was ill in bed with a throat trouble. As it cost me an effort to speak, I merely smiled a welcome to him. He surveyed me in silence for a moment. His mother said:

"Aren't you sorry auntie is sick?"

He looked up at her, his face fairly radiant with the light of a sudden resolve, and said:

"Mammie, if Auntie Stone dies, I'm a-doin' to the funewal!"

MRS. E. M. STONE.
Northfield Falls, Vt.

HIS POT BOILIN'.

One cold day last Winter my little boy, Arthur, aged three, and I were on the street, and noticing for the first time the vapor from his breath, he began to cry. When I asked him what was the matter he said:

"Oh, ma, I think my pot is boilin'."

MRS. HARTNETT.

CANNOT OUST NANCE O'NEIL

The Superior Court has denied the prayer of J. Fred Hasseltine asking for a receiver to take possession of an estate in Tyngsboro which Nance O'Neil occupies and intended to buy as a Summer home. Plaintiff brought a cross bill against Charles T. Blanchard of Syracuse, N. Y., receiver and trustee in bankruptcy of the Adamant Plaster Company, of Syracuse, which had a claim on the property.

Hasseltine bought the property last August at a foreclosure sale, and two days later Blanchard brought a bill in equity seeking to set aside the sale and to redeem the premises foreclosed. Plaintiff claimed that when the plaster company went into bankruptcy its interest in the property ceased.

Hasseltine also alleged that Nance O'Neil, a tenant at will, is without means and financially irresponsible and cannot refund the money to buy the property.

BACK TO HUSBAND; ABSENT A WEEK

BEVERLY, April 19.—Mrs. Levi E. Grant, whose sudden departure from her home last week created a sensation in Beverly, has returned to her husband and two children. Mrs. Grant had her trunks and plans sent to her mother's, while she dropped out of sight. Mr. Grant says she went away because of ill-health, and that now all is serene in the household.

The AMERICAN ANNOUNCES
THE EARLY CLOSING
Of Our Great Co-Operative Encyclopedia Club. Join Before It Is Too Late.

THE NEW STANDARD ENCYCLOPEDIA

12 large volumes	900,000 topics
8,500 pages	150 colored maps
55,000 articles	3,000 illustrations

Numerous Colored Plates
The equivalent of 100,000 volumes boiled down and condensed

Only a few sets are left of the great Encyclopedia, in 12 massive volumes, which the BOSTON AMERICAN is distributing among its readers and friends. If you have not already received a set, forward your application without delay, or you will be too late. The success of the enterprise has far exceeded our expectations. We contracted with the publishers for a very large edition, expecting it would be ample for our needs, but we have been swamped with applications, and it is certain that the supply cannot last much longer.

If you need an Encyclopedia, either for yourself or for your family, do not overlook this opportunity. Thousands of homes which never before knew what it was to have a good reference work are now enjoying "The New Standard Encyclopedia." They profited by the AMERICAN'S great co-operative enterprise. You can do the same. Will you grasp the opportunity while there is time?

A Great Educational Enterprise.

The object of this enterprise is to place an Encyclopedia in the home of every earnest man and woman who desires to improve their condition. A good Encyclopedia is a whole library in itself. It gives in condensed and digested form the collected wisdom of all time. Here you will find information on every subject—history, science, geography, politics, religion, commerce, philosophy, etc.—written in words that all can understand. For the children, it will answer every question that pops into their inquiring minds; for older people, it will be a complete university, from which they can with a little application get the equivalent of a college education.

The New Standard Encyclopedia

Selected by the American Club because it is absolutely new, complete and up to date—not a rehash of some foreign work long obsolete.

- An Encyclopedia that completes the story of human achievement.
- A Gazetteer of world wide information.
- An Encyclopedia edited down to the present day.
- A Reference Work compiled by the world's ablest specialists.
- An Encyclopedia written by Practical Men.
- An Encyclopedia designed for home study.
- An Encyclopedia built along American lines.
- An Encyclopedia suitable for young people.

Former Prices Prohibitive.

Heretofore the best Encyclopedias have been put on the market at abnormal high figures, ranging from $80 to $120—prices which only the very rich could afford to pay. In order to overcome this obstacle, arrangements have been made with the publishers of the NEW STANDARD ENCYCLOPEDIA for an entire edition of that splendid work, which will be distributed to the public at about the actual cost of manufacture, and on terms within the reach of every income.

The Co-Operative Plan.

In entering upon this great educational enterprise the AMERICAN acts as a purchasing agent, representing both the publishers and the public. On account of our immense purchasing and distributing powers, we are able to guarantee the sale of a very large edition. The plan is to distribute it by means of a great Co-operative Club, which will entirely eliminate all middle profits. Complete sets are shipped direct from the binders to purchasers. As a result of this great saving, those who join the Club are able to secure this newest and best reference library at a price heretofore unheard of in the annals of publishing.

How to Get a Set

It is impossible in this limited space to describe fully the plans and purposes of the Club, whereby members may have the entire library delivered to them at once, and pay for it at the rate of a few cents a day. If you are interested, write to-day for full particulars. Remember, it will not cost you a cent to investigate. This Club was organized for your benefit. No one will be to blame but yourself if you do not get one of these Encyclopedias. Tear off the coupon and mail it to us to-day. Only a few sets are left.

Only One Way to Compromise

Reduce the Price of Gas, Stop Stock Watering and Abolish the Corruption Fund

How can a patriotic citizen of Massachusetts better celebrate Patriots' Day than by solemnly making up his mind that the insolent and corrupting Gas Trust shall be forced back into its proper sphere of activity?

Read the editorial from the Springfield Republican in the last two columns of this page and observe the depth to which the Gas Trust has fallen in its efforts to fool the people.

Rumors that the Trust was buying members of the Legislature, and was endeavoring in illegitimate ways to influence members who have the lighting question in hand have been current from time to time. The Gas Trust has, of course, indignantly denied the truth of these rumors; the gentlemen concerned have also shown their virtuous indignation. Whether these rumors were true or not, the Gas Trust has now been caught in the very act of inducing newspapers, for a money consideration, to print as news matter erroneous and misleading statements which it desires the public to believe.

The Gas Trust is beaten. That it recognizes its own defeat is shown by the fact that it is appealing for a compromise.

The roundabout and peculiar method which the Gas Trust has employed to get the terms of this so-called compromise before the public is characteristic. It "hires" outside newspapers to print "dispatches" from Boston saying the compromise has been agreed upon.

A compromise introduced to the public this way is not the kind of a compromise the public wants. The only compromise possible after the exhibition of such methods as these, would be one whereby the Gas Trust will agree to sell gas at a reasonable profit, to stop watering its stock, and to quit its efforts to corrupt public officials and fool the public by hiring fake news matter printed in apparently respectable newspapers.

Franchises Granted Hereafter Can Properly Be Confiscated

Franchise Grabbers Must Understand That the Public Know They Are Stealing—Stolen Property Can Be Recovered

The people are going to take over, manage and own the municipal franchises and the national franchises that have been obtained in the past by bribery.

This work of taking back for the people the property that they should never have given up will be done slowly and ON A BASIS OF PAYING DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR.

As Tom Watson said at a Municipal Ownership meeting recently, the people will have to PAY to get back their franchises—that is the price they pay for putting thieves in office.

The people will pay for franchises granted IN THE PAST. They will not buy all the idiotic watered stock, naturally, but they will pay a fair price for the actual investment.

But things will be different IN THE FUTURE. The men who make a business of stealing franchises have been informed by the Chicago vote and a universal expression of public opinion that the people purpose hereafter to manage their own natural monopolies.

The high-class financial pirate who shall get franchises by bribery hereafter DOES SO AT HIS OWN RISK.

He must understand that he is receiving stolen property, AND THAT THE PEOPLE, SOONER OR LATER, WILL VOTE TO TAKE THAT PROPERTY BACK—and they will not pay for the stolen goods, either.

There will be, of course, much wailing about "widows and orphans," but widows and orphans and honest people in general are hereby warned that they will do well not to invest their savings in franchises secured by bribery, from now on.

The people will repudiate the granting of such franchises. Those who invest their money in the dishonest schemes of politicians and financiers will do so with the knowledge that they run the risk at any moment of losing their total investment.

We have just celebrated Thomas Jefferson's birthday, and it is appropriate, in connection with judges and others so ready to grant injunctions and other favors to corporations, to quote a few of Jefferson's sayings. As he helped to wind up this country and set it going, he probably had sufficient authority for criticising some little tuppenny judge, picked out BECAUSE THE CORPORATIONS TRUSTED HIM. Those who have an idea that the criticism of a judge is tantamount to criticism of the Creator will perhaps read the following statements of Jefferson with interest:

> It is better to toss up cross and pile in a cause than to refer it to a judge whose mind is warped by any motive whatever, in that particular case. (Notes on Virginia, 1782.)
>
> As for the safety of society we commit honest maniacs to Bedlam, so judges should be withdrawn from their bench whose erroneous biases are leading us to dissolution. It may, indeed, injure them in fame or in fortune; but it saves the Republic, which is the first and supreme law. (Autobiography, 1821.)
>
> It is not enough that honest men are appointed judges. All know the influence of interest on the mind of a man, and how unconsciously his judgment is warped by that influence. To this bias add that of the esprit de corps of their peculiar maxim and creed, that "it is the office of a good judge to enlarge his jurisdiction," and the absence of responsibility, and how can we expect impartial decisions between the General Government, of which they are themselves so eminent a part, and an individual State, from which they have nothing to hope or fear? (Ibid.)
>
> One single object, if your provision (in Louisiana Code) attains it, will entitle you to the endless gratitude of society—that of restraining judges from usurping legislation. And with no body of men is this restraint more wanting than with the judges of what is commonly called the General Government, but what I call our Foreign Department. (To Edward Livingston, 1825.)

"We live upon the earth, you know," Said Little Susie Silk.

"Of course we do," said Fred; "But I'll be bound

My mother knew a lady once Who lived on buttermilk."

"That's true enough," said Sue; "But she was drowned."

Gas Trust Caught!

Its Corruption Fund Turned Now to the Purchase of "News Matter" in Massachusetts Papers.

FROM THE SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN.

The Republican has received from the office of the Boston Elevated Railroad Company, over the signature of J. Harvey White, the following letter, addressed to the advertising manager:

> Enclosed you will find copy for a reading matter ad. to be used in your paper Tuesday, April 18th. It is understood that this will be set as news matter in news type, with a news heads at the top of the column and without advertising marks of any sort. First page position is desired unless your rates debar that position, in which case give it the best position possible. Please send your bill at the lowest net cash rates to the undersigned at the above address.

The above pertains to an alleged letter or dispatch which predicts a compromise in the Boston gas controversy that will be "satisfactory to all interested parties." The point of view which the gas companies would like to have the public take is then set forth with much art, under the guise of a report of the situation by some one whom the reader must assume to be a disinterested observer. It is needless to say that The Republican declines to lend itself to such uses. Thus by the expenditure of money the attempt is made to mislead, and to make an illegitimate use of newspapers. Such letters or dispatches are a fraud upon the public, and any such effort to pass from the advertising to the reading columns ought to be resented by all self-respecting journals.

(The Springfield Union printed the "advertisement" which the Republican rejected. It appeared in the Union in the guise of a telegraphic dispatch from Boston, under the caption, "Compromise on Boston Gas."—Editor BOSTON AMERICAN.)

To-day's Lesson of Paul Revere's Ride

By Rev. Albert E. George.

PAUL REVERE, with the other patriots, had one quality in his memorable ride. He had nerve. The man who carried the news to Garcia was like him in this respect.

In fact, the resistance of the Colonists was nervy. All they had to their credit was twelve field pieces and seventeen thousand pounds of salt fish.

Paul studied the situation, and acted at once. He dodged some of his pursuers, and afterwards was forced to face others. He felt the clap of the pistol to his head. Threats did not unnerve him.

He set out to do a certain thing, and he would move heaven and earth to accomplish it. He was challenged to tell the truth, and he told it. He did not disguise himself. He said his name was Paul Revere.

He was abused for his daring spirit, yet he kept his head on his shoulders and met every reverse in that memorable ride with a determination to succeed.

When he was a prisoner during the latter part of that ride, Major Mitchell said to him:

"We are now going towards your friends, and if you attempt to run, or we are insulted, we will blow your brains out."

"I told him," said Paul, "that he might do as he pleased."

Undaunted at every turn of affairs, he warded off every threat with composure, but never relinquishing the object of his business.

That is the kind of a man that stays in history, and makes a mark. Enthusiasm over them never grows stale. A noted historian said, "that history is an excellent cordial for drooping spirits."

Here in the person of Paul Revere we get in touch with the meaning of that phrase. Be sure you're right, then go ahead. Everyone was sleepless that memorable night. They had some intimations that the worse was coming.

Paul awakened every one to duty and responsibility. He was awake himself, and he wanted everybody to be awake. It was the best spirit of the times. It told in the long run.

He belongs, however, to no special age. His mantle can fall on other shoulders to-day. The country's interests are best served by such bold spirits. Courage, tempered with judgment, yet always aroused to a sense of duty, will win.

"America," says the sage of Concord, "means opportunity." Of course it does. Go forward with the dogged determination of this old patriot to awaken the American people that they have privileges. The common people must see the banners of justice and equal rights. They have a cause to champion.

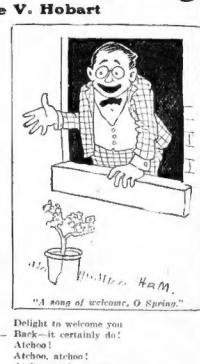

"Through all our history to the last
In the hour of peril men will hear
The midnight message of Paul Revere
And the hurrying hoof-beats of his steed."

An Ode to Spring

By George V. Hobart

Copyright, 1905, by American-Journal-Examiner.

GEE WHIZ!
'Tis Spring!
Let me fling
Open the window wide and sing
A song of welcome, O Spring!
By crickey!
This is a jameshickey
Surprise!
And it's good for goggledized eyes
To
See you
With us once again—that's true!
Atchoo!
Atchoo, atchoo!
Pardon them sneeze!
I'm afraid a few freeze
Still lingers longer, Lucy!
What a juicy
Old Winter we've had,
Dear Spring—dreadfully bad
Weather all around,
With the ground
Slightly decorated with snow—
Oh!
I should say decorated with a few
Sneez—
At any rate, we have yearned for you—
Atchoo!
Atchoo, atchoo!
Atchoo! Atchoo! Atchoo!
Sneezeorum, sneezoribus, as they Say
In Latin, which language you
Know a thing or two
About, so I'll not translate.
Say, Spring! It gives us great

"A song of welcome, O Spring."

Delight to welcome you
Back—it certainly do!
Atchoo!
Atchoo, atchoo!
Atchoo, atchoo, atchoo!
Atchoo, atchoo, atchoo, atchoo!
Gracious goodness, sakes alive!
I've
Struck a nasal earthquake!
Pardon me, Spring, if I wake
The community with my sneeze
Output, if you please!
Tousle
Us he, dear Spring,
Just bring
Your trunk and stay
Until—well, say,
Until Summer gets here by and by.
Won't you try
To crack Winter's backbone?
Do so, and you may own
The community—that's what!
Give us a hot
Time in the old town, do!
Atchoo!
Atchoo, atchoo!
Atchoo, atchoo, atchoo!
Atchoo, atchoo, atchoo, atchoo!
Atchoo, atchoo, atchoo, atchoo, atchoo!
Pardod be!
Whee!
I bust be geddi'g a code id by
Dose—by, oh! by!
Say, Sprig!
You're doc doi'g a thi'g
To be!
I cad see
Visions of doctor's bids all
Arou'd be!—that's a vedy shull
Way to treat a feddow, Sprig!
I shd'd si'g
Addyho to you—
Geddie Sprig, you
Are a fraud—atchoo!
Adieu!
